Friday

Animal planet

The intriguing exhibit Tweak of Nature takes a unique look at the world's creatures (including, um, us) in photo-based constructions, whimsical sculpture, large-scale paintings, and site-specific installation by artists Seunghwui Koo, Tasha Lewis, and Kate Stewart. The show, which runs through April 21, opens with a talk by the artists and a reception at the Main Line Art Center, 746 Panmure Rd., in Haverford. Time: 5:30 p.m. Admission is free. Information: 610-525-0272 or www.mainlineart.org.

Saturday

Machine age

One hundred years ago, cartoonist Rube Goldberg gained fame for his drawings of overly complicated devices to perform simple tasks in convoluted ways, such as an automatic napkin that required a parrot and a firecracker to operate. His achievement lives on in, you guessed it, our TV remotes. Oh, and also the Rube Goldberg Machine Contest. The first annual Philadelphia event — in which middle- and high-school students from the region compete to build a complex contraption to erase a chalkboard — goes on at Friends' Central, 1101 City Ave. Time: 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is free for spectators. Information: 215-906-7111 or <http://www.rubegoldberg.philly.com>.
