DCED GRANT

Ardmore Initiative installs seasonal planters in downtown Ardmore

ARDMORE » The Ardmore Initiative, with a grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Community and Economic Development (DCED), installed and filled 30 planters along Lancaster Avenue. These planters are part of the Ardmore Initiative's goal to bring visual interest and increase safety along one of the busiest parts of Lancaster Avenue.

"Even though Lancaster Avenue is our Main Street, it is still a busy state highway," said Christine Vilaro, executive director of the Ardmore Initiative. "We chose and installed the 30 planter boxes to create a visual barrier and to make it a little easier for pedestrians to navigate around vehicular traffic. Our goal is to provide a safe, fun environment for folks to Walk Ardmore!"

The planters are maintained by the Ardmore Initiative and will be changed

LEGALLINE

Free legal advice offered Dec. 2 by Philadelphia Bar Association

The Philadelphia Bar Association will offer free legal advice to residents of Philadelphia and the surrounding counties on Wednesday, Dec. 21, between 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Members of the public can access the service by calling the Association's LegalLine P.M. hotline at (215) 238-6333.

Area residents seeking confidential legal advice will be able to speak for free with a volunteer attorney from the Philadelphia Bar Association. Attorneys take are available to offer information about any aspect of the law including family law, landlord-tenant, workers' compensation and employment law, among other topics.

LegalLine P.M. is a public service sponsored by the Young Lawyers Division of the Philadelphia Bar Association, providing residents with free, quick and accurate legal advice during convenient evening hours. LegalLine P.M. is offered on the third Wednesday of every month from 5 to 8 p.m. The program has existed for nearly 20 years, allowing volunteer attorneys to help thousands of callers through direct service or by referring them to an appropriate source.

In addition, during regular work hours, the Philadelphia Bar Association offers another program -- the Lawyer Referral and Information Service (LRIS) -- which provides lawyer referrals to area residents. Staff attorneys take calls from the general public and refer callers to attorneys in private practice for a 30-minute consultation, for which the attorney agrees to charge a drastically reduced fee of $35.

If callers do not need an attorney or cannot afford one, they will be directed to a legal service organization, agency or other resource for assistance. LRIS is available Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., by calling 215-238-6333.
